Brief Report

The Awareness Programme on Sustainable Agriculture Methods was organized with the objective of promoting eco-friendly and climate-resilient farming practices among farmers, students, and the local community. The session highlighted the importance of sustainable agriculture in ensuring food security, conserving natural resources, and maintaining ecological balance. Experts from the agricultural sector and faculty members led informative sessions on organic farming, integrated pest management, soil and water conservation techniques, and the use of renewable resources in farming. Interactive discussions, demonstrations, and experience-sharing by progressive farmers enriched the learning experience. The programme created a platform for knowledge exchange and encouraged participants to adopt sustainable practices for long-term agricultural development.
